

Miss Mary E. Luckwood, after making of over a year, has returned from Plaqu, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Brown are spending two weeks at the St. James, Philadelphia.

Misses Mary and Louise are participating the fraternal celebration at Washington on Tuesday.

J. Clarence Randall has come to Weston, West Virginia, to look for a contract for that place.

A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of Albert Hughes charged with non-support and disorderly conduct.

Anita, the five-month-old daughter of William Wals on, died last evening. It is with pneumonia.

Owing to a swollen ankle, Herbert Crozier was unable to attend the willutes of Cemetery Hall on Monday.

William, the ten-month-old son of Angelo di Russo, died of typhoid following an attack of measles, Tuesday.

Owen Evans is making arrangements for planting and a new system in the residence of Mrs. Welch, after the street.

Mrs. Joseph Durkin has returned to her home, corner of Cedar and Washington street, from a visit to Florida.

Fifty eight applications for membership will be acted upon by the Order of Oaks at the meeting next Tuesday night.

The ferryboat William J. Brown, has been withdrawn from service and taken to Philadelphia for annual inspection and repairs.

A large class in the "new" square was the widow of the widow from the estate of the late Alfred C. Crump on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams, a native Cedar-street couple, arrived in New York, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Melbourn.

Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Peterson, formerly of this city, have moved to West Philadelphia, as Mr. Peterson is engaged in business.

The real and personal property of the late Peter Elmer 155 Buckley street, will be sold at public auction tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Mrs. C. Dixon and Helen Price were guests at Haddon on Saturday, and witnessed the demonstration by the university students in honor of Woodrow Wilson.

Angie Wilson. The famous paper belonging to J. M. Wilson, who has moved to Lexington, Kentucky, on Monday where it will remain in winter quarters.

J. J. Yerkes, of 901 Washington street who for a number of years had charge of the John Warramaker delivery in Bristol, has resigned to take a position in a different city.

Mrs. Violet Moore was home from Washington, D. C., several days last week to see her father, Daniel Moore, who is confined to his bed with illness at his home on E. Main.

Through the courtesy of Senator Jones, of the State of Washington, Mrs. Mary B. Paschall accepted a course in the Breadwinners' sewing stand during the inaugural ceremonies at Washington on Tuesday.

While coming from the railroad station, near the local depot, she inspected new postoffice building, Mrs. William Smith of Pond street stepped in a job near the Washington street canal bridge and broke several bones in her foot.

Jir Hargrove is building an addition to the property he recently purchased at the corner of Third and Walnut streets, to be used as a dental office. The addition is being erected on the Walnut side east of the premises.

Mrs. Mary Miles, 75 years old, died at 11 A. M. last Wednesday shortly after midnight. Monday morning pneumonia. The deceased leaves two sons and a daughter. The funeral was held yesterday. Interment at Mt. Airy cemetery.

The Farmers National Bank is first in the field distributing the new five cent piece. The new design, which is supposed to be the most attractive contains an Indian head and the form of a buffalo, first "settlers" of the country.

The lecture given by Dr. J. Edgar Editorial.

Bristol
The graduates of the University of Virginia entered the service of their country in great numbers. They were sent forward to the front lines of battle in the form of the United States Army. They were dressed in uniform and wore the colors of the American flag. They were white dusters and blue breeches. They appeared before the public in the same manner as the soldiers of the Civil War. They were the first class drafted into the service of their country. The very fact that they were drafted is a proof of the loyalty and patriotism of our young men. We do you no honor and we are proud of them.

How Safe.

The following is a list of the names of the persons who have attended the meetings of the National Association of Manufacturers since its organization in 1862.

Republished.

One hundred and fifty copies of the Webbs book "The Social Basis of Industry" are now on hand.

On Jan.

[illegible]

Three days ago a stranger here and had been working on a flat street. The wife of the deceased came from her home in Teaneck, N. J. to where, prior to her body was shipped yesterday for interment. There is a widow the deceased leaves three children.

Pressed steel is largely taking the place of forging in the construction of automobile engines.

Nora. How is Mr. Starns? Has gone away from Louie and Mr. Talbot here? I thought it was his father here? He needed a rest? Mr. Starns was gone that's why Mr. Starns has gone.

"I have made a will leaving my estate to the hospital and just a small amount for the children." Were they all here? They were that's all.

one of the station and say, some "No sir!" got making a bet with a fellow named "ora very much." I've got a seal in my hand landed a noble big trout.

The woman looking at me starting we were and just "somewhat talked about." Well! I remember that I was a second.

